

Azar Kheraj

Chief Operating Officer

Azar Kheraj is the Chief Operating Officer of Houseful, a powerful fintech platform that enables Canadians to realize their home ownership goals by bringing together insights-based guidance, industry experts and financial resource support.

Prior to his role at Houseful, Azar served as VP of Strategic Finance at OJO, where his leadership across finance, strategy, corporate development and day-to-day operations, enabled the company to scale its platform to millions of homebuyers and sellers, grow revenue by six times and acquire Movoto, the largest privately owned real estate search portal in the United States. His efforts also helped OJO secure more than $260 million in funding through a series of blockbuster deals that culminated in the sale of its Canadian operations to RBC.

Azar began his career in financial services at Lazard and Bridgewater Associates before transitioning to technology as an early employee at the New York headquarters of Compass. There, he helped launch operations in more than 100 markets across 20 cities, before serving as Head of Operations for the company's Austin region. He is a graduate of Brown University and an active member of his community. In 2023, Azar was recognized as one of Business Insider's top real estate leaders under 35 and a Housingwire Rising Star.